SAN FRANCISCO WINE CHRONICLE WINE TASTING 2010

The First and Largest Competition of American Wines Boasts Over 4,900 Entries in 2010

The most complex process of the San Francisco Chronicle Wine Competition has begun. This comprehensive annual judging is officially underway at Cloverdale Citrus Fairgrounds. On Monday, January 5th, more than 60 professional wine experts from across the country came together for one week in Sonoma County, California to evaluate 4,913 entries, a number that far surpasses expectations from the previous years. With ten new panelists contributing their unique expertise to the judging, each wine will be carefully evaluated by a series of teams that include Wilfred Wong, cellar master for Beverages & More!; Jon Bonne, wine writer for the San Francisco Chronicle; Dan Berger, syndicated journalist; and Paul Lukacs, wine writer and educator out of Baltimore, MD, and many more.
